W: Five, four, three, two, one... Here I come! Now, where could you be? Not under the table... not under the bed... not in the closet... There you are—behind the door!

M: You found me, Mommy! Now it's your turn to hide.

(Text 2)

W: Are you coming skiing with us during winter break?

M: No. Unfortunately, I have to stay at home with my dog.

(Text 3)

W: Did you buy all of those vegetables at the store?

M: No. I got them from the community garden. I volunteer there after school two days a week. So, I am allowed to take these home for free!

(Text 4)

W: I got two letters and eight emails from my old friends this week.

M: Oh, really? I never hear from anyone. But I never write, either.

(Text 5)

W: Excuse me. Do you have this dress in a larger size?

M: What size is that you have now?

W: Medium. But it is a little bit tight for me.

(Text 6)

M: Hello, this is Charles Richard from Channel 7 News, and we're down here, uh, at the City Mall, interviewing people on how they celebrate Christmas. And, uh, hi, young lady, what is your name?

W: Elizabeth Carter.

M: And, uh, Elizabeth, how does your family celebrate Christmas?

W: We go skiing, and we go over to my grandparents' house to have dinner with them.

M: And does your family eat anything particular for Christmas?

W: Turkey...

M: Oh, that sounds great.

(Text 7)

W: Where will we go during this break?

M: I was thinking of a place in Mexico. Do you remember when we went to that really hot place several years ago? Where the water was almost as warm as the air and we had a hard time sleeping at night?

W: Yeah...

M: I'd like to go back there.

W: But...

M: Don't worry, though. We went during the summer last time, August, I think. This time, it'll be winter. It's perfect weather there in January. And we'll be able to watch the whales that live there from December to February.

(Text 8)

M: Didn't you just get that book from the library?

W: Yes, a few days ago.

M: It looks like you're almost finished with it. Why are you reading it so fast?

W: I like the story so much that I can hardly put it down.

M: Well, we can't get to the library until the weekend. So, you won't have anything new to read until then. You should read only a few chapters each day.

W: I'll do that with the next book. This one is too exciting.

M: What are you going to do for the rest of the week? There are four days left before Saturday arrives.

W: I think I'll read this book again. When I read quickly, I don't remember certain parts very well.

(Text 9)

W: Our son's birthday is in three days' time. How shall we celebrate it, dear?

M: I think we should buy some toys for him.

W: Do you think so?

M: Yes, he enjoys playing with planes, model cars and boats. How about buying some for him?

W: Yes, I agree.

M: But I don't think it's enough only to buy something for him.

W: What else do you want to do for him?

M: You know, it's right on Saturday. We are all free that day. Let's take him to the zoo.

W: Good idea. It's a long time since we went out together.

M: Let's take him to the zoo in the morning and then have our lunch together in a KFC.

W: Our son will be mad with joy to hear it.

M: I think he will.

(Text 10)

The first American President, George Washington, worked with the city planner Pierre L'Enfant to choose the land for the new presidential home. A competition was held to find a building designer.

Nine plans were considered, and the architect James Hoban won. Construction began in 1792. The first president to live there was John Adams. He and his wife Abigail moved into the White House in 1800. During the war of 1812, British troops burned most of the inside of the White House. James Hoban helped rebuild it. Over the years, each president has made changes or additions to the building.

The White House walls are made of stone that is painted white. But the famous building has had other names over time, including the President's House and the Executive Mansion. In the early 1900s, President Theodore Roosevelt made the White House its official name.

In the 1930s, President Franklin Roosevelt decided to rebuild and expand part of the building that became known as the West Wing. Some of the public rooms in the White House are named after colors. There is the Blue Room, the Green Room and the Red Room.

Dear George,

I'm sorry to say that I cannot go to the China Aerospace Museum with you on Friday afternoon. I have been told that I have to attend an important meeting that afternoon. I hope that change will not cause you too much trouble.

Shall we go on Sunday morning? We can set out early so that we'll have more time to visit the exhibition. If it's convenient for you, let's meet at 9:00 outside the school gate. If not, let me know what time suits you best.

I'm looking forward to your reply.

Yours,
Li Hua
