

参考答案

高二年级英语学科

第一部分：听力 (1.5×20=30 分)

1-5 CBABC      6-10 CBAAC      11-15 BCACB      16-20 ABCBA

第二部分：阅读理解 (21-30: 2.5×10=25 分; 31-35: 2×5=10 分)

21-23 DAC      24-26 CCB      27-30 DDBA      31-35 FAECG

第三部分：语言运用

第一节：完形填空 (1.5×20=30 分)

36-40 CCBCA      41-45 ACBBA      46-50 ABACD      51-55 BABAD

第二节：语法填空 (1.5×10=15 分)

56. an      57. have started      58. Graduates      59. Faced      60. various
61. where      62. successfully      63. challenging      64. while / but      65. as

第四部分：写作

第一节 单词拼写

66. evident	67. civilization	68. adopt	69. convey	70. teasing
71. eventually	72. possession	73. embarrassed	74. mentally	75. aggressive
76. typical	77. allergic	78. predict	79. addicted	80. flexibly

第二节：概要写作 (25 分)

Lemurs are in great danger of dying out because of the loss of their habitats caused by the deforestation. The reason is that they are badly in need of more farmland to satisfy the demand of people for food. To solve the problem, local people should be made to become aware of the value of lemurs and search for new ways of living. Another danger to lemurs is the illegal hunting by the poachers, which remains to be solved.

The recent years have witnessed a sharp decline in the number of lemurs, for which the irresponsible deforestation is to blame. Farmers destroy their habitats to expand farmland to feed growing population. To our relief, effective coping measures have come up to arouse local people's awareness of the significance of the forest, get them involved in the forest protection and help them develop new ways of living. However, the illegal hunting of lemurs remains a problem to be solved.

录音原文

Text 1

M: Excuse me. Can you tell me where pizzas are?

W: Pizzas. Er, let me think. Oh yeah, they are over there in the food section, next to the clothing.

Text 2

M: Could you tell me the time of the first and the second periods?

W: Sure. The first period begins at 8:00 a.m. and lasts until 8:50 and the second one is from 9:05 to 9:55.

Text 3

M: Who is that man sitting in the corner?

W: Don't you remember? He attended our wedding party.

M: Oh, I remember now. Uncle Philip, our father's coworker.

W: You are right.

Text 4

M: Do you want to go out this evening?

W: No, I thought I'd get some painting done.

M: I'll help you when I finish my tea.

Text 5

M: Do you live very far from your office?

W: Well, the distance is about 20 miles. But it doesn't seem that far. The road is good and there's not much traffic.

Text 6

M: Holly, shall we have tea at the Rain Teahouse?

W: Good idea. We really should have a rest. When?

M: How about this afternoon?

W: No problem. I remember you like beer most. Why do you want to drink tea suddenly?

M: I am interested in China's tea culture and what a teahouse is.

W: Really? What kind of tea do the Cantonese like?

M: That's too easy, black tea, of course.

W: Why do Chinese people like tea in their lives?

M: Drinking tea can refresh oneself.

W: Pretty good. You have learned so much after you come to China from America.

Text 7

W: I really hate the bad traffic, Danny. The crowds. The rush. I spend two hours a day on the subway and on buses.

M: That's city life for you.

W: You are really lucky, Danny. You go to work when everyone's at home.

M: True.

W: The other day, I waited half an hour for a No.74 bus and then three No.74 buses arrived at the same time! It made me mad.

M: Well, a bus is better than the subway. Who wants to be stuck in tunnel? But I know someone who's solved the problem.

W: Who's that? You?

M: No, Tony Berelli. He lives over the store.

Text 8

W: Tell me exactly what happened.

M: Well, I was walking through the park yesterday when a woman knocked me right off my feet and ran off through the trees.

W: Can you describe the woman for me?

M: Yeah. She was about 190 centimeters tall, and wearing a red sweater, and a pair of basketball shoes.

W: Hmm. What else?

M: She had a heavy build, with long hair and was probably in her late 30s.

W: What was, uh, taken...exactly?

M: Well, just my left shoe.

W: Oh, this man again! He often wanders around the park. He likes to remove the left shoe from men for some unknown reason and usually returns the shoe to the crime scene a couple of days later.

M: Hey, he can keep my shoe, and I'll just take off my left shoe every time I walk through the park.

Text 9

W: Did you know it was going to rain today?

M: Absolutely not. This comes as a total shock to me especially since the paper said mostly sunny.

W: Well, I guess the paper must have meant mostly sunny somewhere else. But since we've come all this way, why don't we just move the blanket under that tree?

M: That's a good idea. It looks like it's still dry there as long as it doesn't start to come down any harder.

W: No. But I have got some folding chairs in the car. Will they do?

M: They will be just fine. I'm really hungry, so while you are there, how about bringing me the food?

W: I thought you were bringing the food.

M: This is unbelievable. If I weren't so hungry, it would be really funny. So what now?

W: What is the name of that restaurant you like so much again?

Text 10

A well-dressed lady walks into a bank in Washington D.C. and asks for the loan officer. She says she's going to Asia on business for two weeks and needs to borrow $5,000. The bank officer tells her that the bank will need some kind of security for such a loan, so the lady hands over the keys to an expensive new car parked on the street in front of the bank. With everything checked out, the bank agrees to accept the car as security for the loan. The loan officer drives the car into the bank's underground garage and parks it there. Two weeks later, the lady returns and repays the $5,000 and the interests, which comes to $ 15.41. The loan officer comes up to the lady and says, "We are very happy to have had your business, but we're a little puzzled. While you were away, we checked out your accounts and found that you had a lot of money. I don't understand why you would bother to borrow $5,000." The lady replied, "Well, where else in Washington D.C. can I park my car for two weeks for about 15 dollars?"