“No act of kindness, no matter how small, is ever wasted.”

—Aesop

Today is Random Acts of Kindness Day. It's a day set aside to show extra kindness to the people around us—those we know and those we don't. Smiling and saying a few encouraging words is easy. But an act of kindness is something you actually do. A random act of kindness is usually unexpected and unplanned. Maybe you help someone carry groceries. Maybe you pay for a stranger's coffee. Or maybe send an encouraging note to a friend.

Caring for others is nothing new. In fact, the Bible tells everyone to “Love your neighbor as yourself.” But who is your neighbor? There is an example in the story of “The Good Samaritan”.

It tells of a traveler who was robbed and beaten. A religious leader saw the man lying in the road but didn't stop to help. Another religious man also ignored him. But a Samaritan came along. He was a foreigner. He showed compassion and took care of the strangers' needs. He showed mercy.

Is helping strangers a thing of the past? Are people today too busy or too afraid to help someone they don't know? I know from experience that goodwill between strangers still exists.

One Sunday morning I was running late for church. As I started to drive off, I noticed an elderly lady. She was dragging a large piece of wood out of the rain. I was in a hurry, but I hesitated. Then I stopped my car, got out and helped her move the wood.

Months went by. Then one day, I saw some workmen cleaning out an old store. There in the pile of trash was a large Coca-cola cooler. How fun! A worker said I could have it, so I picked it up and started home. I didn't get very far. It was much heavier than I thought. Then out of the blue, the elderly lady appeared with a cart! I had helped her, and she was returning the favor. Go and help your neighbor today!

21. Which of the following is NOT a random act of kindness?

- A. Smiling and saying a few encouraging words.
- B. Helping an old man cross the street.
- C. Paying for a stranger's breakfast.
- D. Sending an encouraging note to a friend.

22. What does the underlined phrase “out of the blue” in the last paragraph mean?

- A. Happily
- B. Fortunately
- C. Surprisingly
- D. Excitedly

23. How does the author show that kindness between strangers still exists?

- A. By making a comparison.
- B. By giving an example.
- C. By explaining reasons.
- D. By stating opinions.

24. Which can be the best title of the passage xkw?

- A. Love Your Neighbors
- B. Random Acts of kindness
- C. Random Kindness Pays Off
- D. It's Never Too Late to Help Others

What would you do if a large blue cat suddenly appeared in your bedroom? Better yet, what would you do if that cat came out of a time portal in your desk drawer? These might sound like crazy questions, but that is exactly how a boy named Noby Nobita meets the cat-shaped robot Doraemon.

Noby is a typical kid with everyday struggles. He deals with bullies, bad grades and making poor decisions. Unfortunately he will have an even more miserable life when he is an adult. That's why one of his 22nd-century descendants decides to send Noby some help from the future. That help comes in the form of a cat-shaped robot named Doraemon. While he may look like a cat, Doraemon doesn't have ears or fur. Doraemon is easy to recognize by his blue color and a small pocket on his stomach. He helps Noby solve problems by pulling gadgets from the future out of this four-dimensional pocket. I was sitting in a taxi, wondering if I had overdressed for the evening, when I looked out of the window and saw Mother rooting through (翻找) a dustbin. It was just after dark in March. I was stuck in traffic two blocks from the party where I was heading.

Mother stood fifteen feet away. She had tied rags around her shoulders to keep out the spring cold and was rooting through the trash. Her eyes widened with childish joy when she found something she liked. She looked like any of the thousands of homeless people in New York City. It had been months since I laid eyes on Mother, and when she looked up, I was afraid that she would see me and call out my name, and that someone on the way to the same party would see us together and that my secret would be out.

I slid down in the seat and asked the driver to turn around and take me home. The taxi stopped in front of my building, the doorman held the door for me, and the elevator man took me up to my floor. The apartment was silent except for the click of my heels on the polished wood floor. I felt ashamed when I saw Mother rooting happily through the dustbin. I looked around the room. I'd tried to turn it into the sort of place where the person I wanted to be would live. But I could never enjoy it because I worried about my parents on a sidewalk or somewhere else. I was ashamed of myself for wearing pearls and living on Park Avenue while they were busy keeping warm and finding something to eat. I hated myself — hated my clothes and my apartment.

What could I do? I'd tried to help them countless times, but they would insist they didn't need my help. They said that they were living the way they wanted to. And I just accepted who they were.

第四部分 写作

第一节 应用文

One possible version:

Dear Lynn,

I'm sorry to learn about your problem. It's normal for your mother to worry about your new college life. Here are some suggestions.

First, why not talk more with your mom? Heart-to-heart talks can help you understand each other better. Second, you'd better learn to take care of yourself in daily life, which will definitely help prove to your mom that you are already grown-up. It would also ease her anxiety if you could share with her the housework, such as cleaning, washing and cooking.

I hope my proposals will be of some help to you.

Yours,
Li Hua

第二节 读后续写

One possible version:

Paragraph 1: I had to do something, so I called my mother. I invited her to have lunch at a restaurant. Mother was sitting at a booth, studying the menu, when I arrived. She waved heartily when seeing me. Having kissed her cheeks, I took my seat and we began to order. Then I told her that I saw her rooting through the trash the other day. I admitted that I was too ashamed to say hello to her, but I was worried about her. Although I was not rich, I wanted to do whatever I could to help her change her life and make it better.

Paragraph 2: After she heard that, her smile faded. A bit annoyed, she stared at me, telling me that she and my father were fine and didn't need any help. Then she told me the reason for her rooting through the trash that day was that people in this country were too wasteful and it was her way of recycling. Immediately, I felt ashamed of myself. Maybe it's I that needed help because there was something wrong with my values. No longer mentally trapped, I accepted with ease the fact that my parents were who they were.
