Dear teachers and fellow students,

I feel privileged to give you a brief introduction to the activity themed “showing respect for our parents” held in our school.

As we all know, filial affection for parents is highly stressed in Chinese traditional education. To deepen our understanding of it, we are gathered here today to attend the activity. As scheduled, the activity consists of four parts, a themed speech, short drama performances, a photo show, and a painting exhibition, the specific time of which has been listed on the notice board.

I do hope we could have a meaningful and enjoyable experience. Thank you for your attendance.

第二节 (满分 25 分)

One possible version:

Mama asked the kids to help Mrs. Marie into the car and put her things in the trunk(后备箱) “My goodness, it must be wonderful to have such helpful kids.” Mrs. Marie exclaimed. When the kids realized they were being praised, they broke into a smile, leaning forward to hear better. Mama noticed their change. Here it was the chance. She asked Mrs. Marie, “Is it convenient for you to live alone?”, to which Mrs. Marie’s answer was definitely not. Sometimes, it was really difficult for an old lady like her to get helpers.

As the car was approaching Mrs. Marie’s house, Mama made a decision. “Kids, shall we help Mrs. Marie do some chores?” Sensing Mrs. Marie was looking at them hopefully, the kids said yes though hesitant. Jenna helped Mrs. Marie into the room, while Jeff brought in all the items. Mama pitched in and helped. Under guidance, the two of them put the items in place. With Mama’s company, they went upstairs to fix the broken attic window, and then downstairs to water the flowers in the garden. A smile flashing on her face, Mama felt relieved to see that kids had learnt to help others by helping.

Text 1

W: I meant to ask you where you got your T-shirt.

M: Oh, I don't like this one. Green isn't my favorite color. (1)

W: No, I mean the one you wore yesterday — red, with a yellow pattern.

Text 2

W: Your sister sent me a lovely bunch of flowers while I was in hospital. I need to get her something to say thanks.

M: She loves dragons. Get her a fantasy book about dragons. (2)

Text 3

M: You and Manny should come out tonight. Ron will be there. He is visiting from California.

W: Manny isn't home from work yet, so you'd better call to ask him. But I don't want to go out tonight if we will be out until midnight again. (3)

Text 4

W: Thank you so much, sir. I was on my way to my mother's when my tire went flat. Without your help, I'd be stuck here for hours.

M: No problem. It was my pleasure to be friendly. (4)

Text 5

W: Excuse me, what's the best way to get there? Should I go down this 1st Street and then turn onto Main Street when I see the mall?

M: I usually just pay for a taxi to get to the museum. It's very cheap. (5)

Text 6

W: I'm looking to buy a bunch of recording equipment. My friends and I want to start something called a podcast(播客). It's almost like a personal radio show, but only digital. (6)

M: I have some old recording equipment that my band doesn't use anymore. Would you like to have a look?

W: That would be great. We don't have anything yet and everything I looked at is a bit expensive. And my budget is within $200 for three speakers.

M: I have at least three speakers that are in good condition. I paid $150 for all three. How about you give me half of that? (7)

Text 7

M: Excuse me, are you Anita Handley?

W: Yes, that's me. How can I help you?

M: I represent Comfort Tour. We're looking for a British company to help us with our marketing in Britain. (8)

W: Ah, so you're looking for a British agent to represent you here? Is that right? (8) (9)

M: Yes, exactly. (8) (9)

W: Well, that's perfect. We already represent a number of companies, so I'm certainly interested in discussing a partnership of some kind. (9)

M: Oh, what other partnerships do you have?

W: Well, we represent a large Japanese company and we have agreements with agents in Australia and Greece. We handle all of their marketing issues in Britain.

M: That sounds great. Why don't we sit down and talk a bit more about it? (10)

W: Fine. Let's discuss it over coffee. (10)

Text 8

W: Have you ever heard of Andy Kaufman? (11)

M: The comedian? Yeah, I saw the film about him. (11) Why do you ask?

W: It was his job to make people laugh, but when you learn about his life, you realize he wasn't happy. My friend has been doing research into what they call false happiness.

M: You mean like having to smile even if you want to cry?

W: Exactly. Kaufman was always joking around. The research is actually based on supermarket workers.

Researchers took photos of them when they were helping customers. (12)

M: To what end?

W: They wanted to see how often the workers felt they had to smile, even if they were feeling unhappy. The constant smiling forced several of them to quit. (12) (13)

M: No wonder. I'd hate to have to smile at everyone if I was feeling upset.

W: My friend now believes that when people pretend to have positive emotions, it only serves to bury the negative ones. As a result, the negative emotions become even stronger. (13)

M: Lucky for me, I never have to deal with customers then.

Text 9

M: Hey, Janet. I was trying to look you up online yesterday, but I couldn't find your social media account. (14) Do you have one under another name to hide it?

W: No, I recently quit social media. I ended up deleting it. (14)

M: Why? I spent hours a day on social media. I love how much information I can get in just a few minutes of looking.

W: It's really stressing me out. There's just too much to absorb.

M: I guess I understand that. But social media is the only way that I know how to communicate with my friends from other countries. (15)

W: I don't have many international friends, so it's not a problem for me. Most of my friends are local. If I want to speak to someone, I will see them in person or just call them.

M: Do you miss anything about using social media? It's so easy to spend hours looking through all of my friends' life events and videos.

W: Well, I used to follow many photographers. I spent many hours getting lost in their works. It was just me and some beautiful photographs when I took time to look at them. (16)

M: So how do you feel now that you don't have it?

W: Honestly, I feel much better in my everyday life. I am free, and more connected to the present than ever before.

Good morning! This is Frankie Phillips with your extended weather report for the Greater Miami area at 5:00 on another beautiful Monday. The whole east coast of Florida has been enjoying some very nice weather this past weekend. But just like all good things, this weather pattern is about to end. Starting this evening, get prepared for some wet weather, folks! Periods of rain overnight will give way to a full storm tomorrow. And not one, but two tropical storms have formed in the Atlantic Ocean to the southeast of us. And they are headed our way! (17) At least one of them is expected to pick up steam over the warm waters of the Caribbean. If the storm doesn't crash into the big islands of Hispaniola and Cuba, it could turn north through the Bahamas and hit the Miami area as a hurricane by Saturday. (18) Don't cancel your picnic plans too soon! These storms are very unpredictable, especially at this time of the year. We are still a month away from the official June 1st start of hurricane season. But hurricanes have been occurring more and more in the off-season. (19) This only started happening in the last couple of years, so it's important to be prepared. There's a very strong chance that the storms will die out well before they reach the Miami area, though. (20) Check back tomorrow morning for the latest updates with Frankie!
