读段首句

Show the theme

Paragraph2:

Angie and I were talking when Mom called, “Hey, guys, are you coming down to meet your little brother?”

📌 Before meeting:

📌 What would I say to Angie?

📌 Would they go down to meet their little brother?

📌 What was their agreement on the baby?

📌 After meeting:

📌 What did the little brother look like?

📌 How would they treat their little brother?

学生习作中的主要错误:

1. Where was the brother when he was speaking to the sister?

2. How old is the baby? What color is the baby?

3. The first para: Then I continued with more facts.

• Facts are not convincing. (only focus on what the brother did; the facts can not show love)

4. Real relationship among the family members

6. 情节脱节: come / climb down the tree (缺少) – meet the baby

Possible Version

Para 1: “And who helped Mom bake and decorate that excellent cake for my last birthday?” I asked. Angie whispered that it was she because she was my sister. “And who stayed up late taking care of you every time you fell ill?” Angie pursed her lips and replied it was Mom. “And who built this tree house because you wanted one so badly, even after he’d hit his thumb with the hammer?” Angie giggled. “It’s a good thing Daddy doesn’t build tree houses for a job.” I knew what she meant. The tree-house floor was full of gaps. Still, it was a great tree house built with love, just like our family. Our family is real because we love each other.

Para 2: Angie and I were talking when Mom called, “Hey, guys, are you coming down to meet your little brother?” Hearing that, I reached out my hand, asking Angie, “Shall we go now?” She took my hand and I pulled her to her feet. “When Mom and Dad brought you home for the first time, I felt proud and responsible as a big brother. The first time we see the new baby, we’ll know he’s part of our family. We’ll love him and want to take care of him.” “Even if he’s green?” Angie asked with a grin. “Even if,” I answered, and I let down the tree-house ladder.

Version 1

Para 2: Angie and I were talking when Mom called, “Hey, guys, are you coming down to meet your little brother?” Hearing this, we stopped our conversation and let down the ladder. When we got down, a cute baby sleeping peacefully in my mother’s arms appealed to us at once. I approached and cautiously touched his soft hair. He meant a treasure to us, bringing new blood to our family. Angie, too, came and stared at the baby with great amazement, now believing he was part of our family. I could tell. She understands the meaning of family lies in the sympathy, help and love. Despite our skin, we will bravely overcome the difficulties we confront with together. That is the real family.

Version 2
