Possible version:

I was calculating how much more money I'd need to buy a recorder when I saw the towers of guitar cases in the back of the store. As much as I wanted a recorder, I wanted to buy Derek a guitar case more. Even if he had been annoying lately, he was a pretty neat brother. Going inside the store, I found the perfect case for Derek, a brown one with gold buttons. It cost a lot, though. Much more than I had. I hoped that there would be lots more mistletoe in the orchard when I got there.

I reached the orchard again, overhearing a familiar voice talking with the orchard owner. It was Derek on the branches! He didn't see me in the shadows. "So what are you doing with all the money I'm paying you? Are you going out and having a good time?" asked the owner. "No," said Derek, getting off the apple tree, "I'm saving up to buy my kid brother something for Christmas. He's been wanting a wooden recorder for ages. He can play pretty well. And you know how it is—he's my brother."

W: I am. I've just changed jobs, and your apartment is very close to my new office. It would be very convenient.

M: I have to warn you, though. The roof started leaking a few weeks ago, so I think that needs to be fixed.

W: Are there any other problems?

M: The windows and doors are not fitted well, so it's a bit cold in the winter.

W: Hmm... That could be a problem.

M: And now that there is something wrong with the roof, you might have more bargaining power.

W: What do you need? My parents have some extra furniture in their garage that I might be able to give you...

M: Well, I have a sofa and a bed. That's it. If I invited more than two people over, there wouldn't be enough places for them to sit down.

W: Well, that's a good start. My parents have a couple of tables you might want. They have one for the dining room, as well as a small one you could put your TV on.

M: Wow, thanks. I'd appreciate those.

W: No problem. What else do you need?

M: Well, I need a wardrobe for my clothes, but those are pretty expensive.

W: Yeah. I don't think my parents have an extra one of those. But maybe we could go to some garage sales this Saturday. We might be able to get a nice one.

M: OK, great! Do you want to meet here or at your place?

W: Let's meet here. That way, if we buy something nearby, we don't have to carry it very far.

M: Good point.

W: Maybe I'll invite my brother to come, just in case. He's strong and can help us carry things... You know what? It's going to look great in here once you get a few nice things.

M: Yeah. Thanks.

Text 10

From as far back as the 17th century, France has been known for its advanced culture. It has played an important role in fashion, art, cuisine, and cinema. It has also had a great effect on the English language. Today, French is the second-most learned language in the world, behind English. Of the 70 million people in France, 88% of the population speak French. The rest speak German, Italian, and earlier forms of French. The people are very proud of their country, its culture, and traditions. This has led some people to believe that the French consider their culture to be superior to others. One thing is certain: they have very high standards. French food is made with love and care. Its sauces are delicious, and meals take all day to cook. Interestingly, "French Fries" are not French at all, but from Spain. They also love fashion. Hand-made clothes from designers Coco Chanel and Louis Vuitton are very popular. Other internationally-known figures are Vincent Van Gogh, the famous Dutch artist who spent most of his life in France, and Yo-Yo Ma, a world-class musician.
