参考范文:

Dear Mike,

Learning that recently you're bothered by the addiction to purchasing with Ant Credit Pay and a heavy financial burden in repayment, I'm writing to offer some suggestions.

Honestly, I totally disapprove of overspending. Not only does it drive us to buy unnecessary things, but also distracts our attention from study, which should be your present focus. If I were you, I would budget reasonably and devote myself to study.

I sincerely hope you can take my suggestions into careful consideration. Best wishes!

Yours,

Li Hua

参考范文:

Para 1: Kelly rushed down to the sidewalk but couldn't reach her crying daughter. Then an idea struck her. She hurried upstairs and knocked on the door of the neighbor on the second floor, with Isabelle following closely behind. Hearing what had happened, the neighbor let them in and joined the rescue. From the window opened next to the awning they were able to reach out and carefully pull the crying girl inside. Kelly held Anne in her arms tightly and examined if she was hurt. She was pretty shocked to find that Anne only had a bruise on her right arm.

Para 2: "She's the luckiest kid in the world," said the neighbor. She had miraculously survived a five-story fall and landed on an awning outside the building. No broken bones, no other serious injuries. Kelly and Isabelle were both glad that the little girl was alive and alright. They extended sincere gratitude to the neighbor and hurriedly sent Anne to hospital for a further examination. After that, Kelly called the landlord for safety bars to prevent the tragedy from occurring again.

M: You seem worried. What's the matter? That interview wasn't going well?

W: The interview went very well. The problem is my daughter. You know, she is taking a trip alone to Australia next month.

Text 2

M: What should I take with me when I talk to the schoolmaster?

W: Bring a pen, a notebook and a small tape recorder. Oh, and a prepared list of questions, of course.

Text 3

M: I'm a tourist. May I go inside and look around?

W: I'm afraid you can't today.

M: When can I go inside then?

W: Only from 1 pm to 5 pm on Saturday and Sunday.

Text 4

M: Hey, Cathy, how about this restaurant? The food is great, as well as the environment, isn't it? You can get anything you want.

W: Anything except fast and friendly service.

Text 5

M: Hello, Arts Center. Peter speaking. How can I help you?

W: Listen, actually I wanted to buy five tickets for tomorrow's show, but after ten minutes' waiting, I got disconnected.

W: Front desk, can I help you?

M: Yes. I'd like to have my suit cleaned and ironed. I have an important dinner meeting, so I'll need it by 5 o'clock.

W: Certainly, sir. I'll have someone come by your room in just a few minutes to pick it up.

M: Please put the charges on my bill. Oh, and I didn't receive the morning paper I asked for. Can you have someone bring that to me after a while?

W: No problem, sir.

W: Friday will be your last day of work with us, right? Will you be starting a new job right away?

M: Yes. I'll be starting an editor's position at a sports magazine next Monday. I'm full of energy now. I'm offered a better salary. And the company is close to my home. Anyway, the best part is that I can choose my own working hours. As long as I put in 40 hours, I can work at any time. It will be nice to have a schedule that is not so strict.

W: It sounds like a really good chance for you. Congratulations. And how lucky you were able to find work so quickly!

M: Actually, I had the interview about two months ago, so it's been quite a long and hard process.

W: OK, so what are we going to see today? There's so much I want to do and we've only got two days left of our honeymoon!

M: Yeah, we've already been here for five days and we still haven't been up the Eiffel Tower! First, I'd like to visit the Arc de Triomphe today. I've seen so many pictures of it. Now I want to see it in person.

W: Yeah, me too. And then we can see the art museum, the Louvre. I'd like to spend a few hours in there.

M: Sure, but that won't leave much time for Montmartre. We can see the famous church, the Sacré-Couer there.

W: OK, but I don't think we'll have time for that today. Let's do that tomorrow. We've got time to climb up the Eiffel Tower, though. Why don't we go there after the Louvre?

M: Sure, OK.

M: Hello, may I speak to Clark Carlson?

W: I'm sorry. He's not in at the moment.

M: This is John Lee. Is that Mrs. Carlson?

W: Oh, John! How have you been? Haven't seen you for some time!

M: I've been quite busy recently, so I haven't been around to see you and Clark.

W: Well, do come over whenever you feel like it. You're always welcome, you know.

M: Thank you. I'll do that. Will Clark be back soon?

W: He should be back in an hour. He's gone to the market to do a survey. Is it urgent?

M: Not really. I just want to tell him that I've found a couple of articles on how to control noise pollution. I think he might be interested.

W: Well, I'll ask him to call back. Could I have your telephone number?

M: My office number is 68453423. Please call me at my home number after 4 o'clock.

W: Newspapers in Great Britain vary greatly in their ways of carrying the news. There are serious papers for those who want to know about important happenings everywhere, both at home and abroad. There are also popular newspapers for those who prefer entertainment to information.

The London newspaper that is best known outside Great Britain is probably The Times. It began in 1785, and has a high reputation for believable news and serious opinions on the news. It calls itself an independent paper, which means that it does not give its support to a particular political party. Its leading articles give the opinions of the editors, not those of the owners of the paper.

Letters to the editor are printed in the newspaper. These parts of The Times are always interesting. Most of the letters are on serious subjects. But from time to time there will be long letters on the subject which is not at all serious, perhaps on a new fashion of dress, or the bad manners of the young people, compared with manners of thirty years ago.
