After spending his career as a chef and working as the Vice President of Food and Beverage at FireKeepers Hotel in Michigan, Michael McFarlen saw how much food would get thrown away from the hotel's restaurant every day.

After some thinking, McFarlen came up with a plan to run a restaurant in the community that would also help support a food pantry (食品橱) on the property. After presenting the idea to FireKeepers leadership, they were immediately on board with the plan. In April of 2016, the FireKeepers Hotel and its owners, the Nottawaseppi Huron Band of the Potawatomi, bought Fire Station No.4, a historic firehouse. They renovated (翻新) the building and turned the fire station into a restaurant.

On April 19, 2017, the restaurant, which they named The Fire Hub, opened to the public for the first time. At the same time, a food pantry, which they named the Kendall Street Food Pantry (KSEP) opened its door in the back of the building. "It really is amazing," Kathy George, the Chief Executive Officer of FireKeepers, told Second Wave Media about the special restaurant designed to support the food pantry. The first year of operation exceeded their expectations. Not only did the restaurant attract customers because of its popularity and sustainability, but the food pantry helped more people in the first year than they ever imagined.

When you think of people using food pantry services, you think of homeless or unemployed people. In reality, however, many of the people who have needed the food pantry's help are people that are employed but still struggle to afford to pay for groceries. On top of helping run the Kendall Street Food Pantry, profits from the Fire Hub are also given to nonprofits like the Safe Place and the Food Bank of South Central Michigan Inc. "We're building a responsible business that takes profits and gives to nonprofits," McFarlen said. "As we get more and more involved, we will give to many other charities and nonprofits."

4. Why did McFarlen want to set up a food pantry?

- A. To recycle waste food.
- B. To bring profits to the hotel.
- C. To help feed the people in need.
- D. To renovate a historic firehouse

5. What does the phrase "on board with" in paragraph 2 mean?

- A. Opposed to.
- B. Doubtful about.
- C. Indifferent to.
- D. In favor of

6. Which of the following best describes the KSFP programme?

- A. Charitable.
- B. Costly.
- C. Conventional.
- D. Profitable

7. What can be inferred from the last paragraph?

- A. The pantry merely serves the people out of job.
- B. The Fire Hub will contribute more continuously.
- C. The local citizens are lacking in job opportunities.
- D. The food in the pantry is affordable for the homeless.

C

The Tiangong space station is a space station being constructed by China. The construction of the station is based on the experience gained from its pioneers, Tiangong-1 and Tiangong-2. The first module (舱), the Tianhe core module, was launched on 29 April 2021, followed by multiple crewed and uncrewed missions and two more modules to be launched by 2022.

According to China Manned Space Agency (CMSA), which operates the space station, the purpose and missions of Tiangong space station are listed as: breakthrough in key technologies such as permanent human operations in orbit, long-term autonomous spaceflight of the space station, life support technology; development of technology that can aid future deep space exploration.

The Tianhe Core Cabin Module (CCM) provides life support and living quarters for three crew members and provides guidance, navigation (导航) for the station. The module also provides the station's power and life support system. The station is equipped with a small kitchen for food preparation and the first-ever microwave oven in the spaceflight, so that astronauts can always have hot food whenever they need. 120 different types of food, selected based on astronauts' preference, are stored aboard.

China's intention to build its own space station was amplified(增强的) after NASA refused Chinese participation in International Space Station in 2011. On 22 February 2017, CMSA and Italian Space Agency (ASI) signed an agreement to cooperate on long-term human spaceflight activities. The agreement holds importance due to Italy's leading position in the field of human spaceflight with regard to the creation and development of the International Space Station and it shows Italy's increased expectation in China's developing space station program. Tiangong is also expected to host experiments from many other countries.

8. What do we know about the Tiangong space station?

- A. It aims to build a core module.
- B. Its construction has been finished
- C. Self-controlled flight is impossible.
- D. It can further assist space exploration.

9. What is paragraph 3 mainly about?

- A. Food stored aboard the station
- B. Ways of cooking in space.
- C. Living conditions on CCM.
- D. Life supporting technologies.

10. What will the future of the Tiangong space station be like according to the text?

- A. Dependent and unclear.
- B. Promising and Influential.
- C. Leading but unpredictable.
- D. Internationalized but risky.

11. In which section of a website may this text appear?

- A. Space fiction.
- B. Life Health
- C. Historical events.
- D. Science

What's more important in determining life success--book smarts or street smarts? This question gets at the heart of an important debate contrasting the relative importance of cognitive(认知) intelligence(CI) and emotional intelligence(EI).

Cognitive intelligence is still recognized as an important element of success, particularly when it comes to academic achievement. People with high cognitive intelligence typically do well in school, often earn more money, and tend to be healthier in general.

But today experts recognize that cognitive intelligence is not the only determining factor of life success. Instead, it is part of a complex range of influences – one that includes emotional intelligence. Many companies now provide emotional intelligence training and use emotional intelligence tests as part of the hiring process. Research has found that individuals with strong leadership potential also tend to be more emotionally intelligent, suggesting that a high emotional intelligence is an important equality for business leaders and managers. According to a survey of hiring managers, almost 75% of the responders suggested that they valued an employee's emotional intelligence more than his cognitive intelligence.

Now that emotional intelligence is so important, can it be taught or strengthened? According to one meta-analysis that looked at the results of social and emotional learning programs, the answer to that question is definitely yes. Strategies for teaching emotional intelligence include character education, modeling positive behaviors, encouraging people to think about how others are feeling, and finding ways to be more empathetic (共鸣) toward others.

All in all, life success is a result of many factors. Both cognitive intelligence and emotional intelligence play roles in overall success, as well as health, wellness, and happiness. Rather than focusing on which factors have a prior influence, the greatest benefit may lie in learning to improve skills in multiple areas. In addition to strengthening cognitive abilities, such as memory and mental focus, you can also acquire and improve social and emotional skills.

12. People with book smarts tend to _____.

- A. debate with other people
- B. deal with various situations
- C. be outstanding in academic research
- D. be good at gaining real life experience

13. Why does the author mention the data in paragraph 3?
- A. To indicate the strictness of hiring process.
 - B. To prove the priority of emotional intelligence.
 - C. To explain the result of emotional intelligence tests
 - D. To show the influence of cognitive intelligence on success.
14. What can be learned concerning emotional intelligence?
- A. Evaluating how others feel.
 - B. One's extreme behaviors
 - C. One's academic performance
 - D. Controlling others' emotions.
15. Which of the following is a suitable title for the text?
- A. Does Book Smart Matter
 - B. Is CI or EI More Important?
 - C. What Counts Most in Life?
 - D. Mental Health or Physical Health?

Art is all around us. It can be found everywhere, including fancy galleries, people's living rooms, and on the sides of buildings. So, why is art important?

It promotes expression and creativity. As humans, we're naturally drawn to art as a form of expression and communication. 16 It's a way for them to express themselves before they're able to speak. In fact, participation in the arts may even assist kids with language, motor skills, and visual learning development.

17. When someone applies for a job, there are certain skills they need to have like data analysis or bookkeeping. However, many employers also understand the very important need for the skills which are hard to measure and often difficult to define. Some examples include a person's ability to adapt to change, think creatively, or collaborate with team members.

It provides historical context. 18. This is why people dedicate their lives to studying cave art, Shakespearean plays, and so much more. When we take the time to dive into art created in the past, we can learn about other generations and eras. We can study art to find out what those before us were facing and how they overcame it. 19.

In therapy(疗法) settings, art also provides an opportunity for digging deeper and expressing emotions that are difficult to discuss. 20. In one important study, children between 6 and 12 were asked to draw a house as a distraction after thinking about something upsetting. This group was able to improve their mood when compared with children who were instructed to draw the negative event or simply copy another drawing.

- A. These are its major benefits.
- B. Children love to draw, sing, and dance.
- C. Art and human history go hand-in-hand
- D. How does it have an impact on our life?
- E. It helps all of us develop necessary soft skills.
- F. It can help people handle both their past and present problems.
- G. Similarly, future generations will learn about our current events by the art we leave behind.

The Christmas Spirit Strikes Again

I always dreamed of making a big surprise of a lifetime. Thanks to a little determination, some luck, and a generous helping of Christmas Spirit, my dream became a reality.

My family is Canadian, although my sister moved down to Australia a few years ago to study. She was graduating just before Christmas, but due to my own scholarly schedule back home, I would be unable to make it down in time for her graduation. She was understandably disappointed, and I felt guilty that I wasn't able to be there for her on this special occasions.

While I was talking to my professor the week before my sister's graduation, she commented, "Well, if you want to go, just go ahead!" I couldn't believe my luck! I nearly jumped for joy. "Just make sure you get permission from administrator (行政主管), " she added. My heart sank. The administration at my school was infamous for denying any sort of time-off requests. I almost didn't bother asking, because I knew it would be a waste of time. But something in me decided to try, just in case. Maybe it was the hope that the Christmas Spirit would somehow affects the administrator at this time of year. When I returned home to check the reply in my inbox, I steeled myself for disappointment. I held my breath,opened the e-mail, and started to read. And re-read, just to make sure I'd understood. Approval? I couldn't believe my luck!

Immediately, I called the airline. Unexpectedly, even during the busy Christmas season, I was able to change my ticket to arrive the day before my sister's graduation. With news this fantastic, I was bursting to tell my sister. But, fingers on the dial((拨号盘), I paused. Wouldn't it be much more fantastic if I could surprise her? What a state of shock she would be in! Slowly a great idea came to my mind. I decided a much more dramatic arrival than just a ring of the doorbell. What if I couldn't arrive in a box?

I started to plot.

I, hidden in the big box, heard the mailmen ringing my sister's doorbell.

第三部分 写作 (共两节, 满分 40 分)

第一节 (满分 15 分)

Dear Alice,

As you know, the 2022 Winter Olympics opening ceremony was held on February 4th in Beijing. It coincides with "Lichun," indicating the start of spring. The presentation of 24 solar terms became an important element.

What impressed me most was the scene that the Olympic flame was dancing lightly in the air at the heart of the cauldron, which represents China's commitment to an eco-friendly and low carbon footprint, in line with the principle of hosting a "green, inclusive, open and clean" Games put forward by president Xi.

I felt deeply moved and proud as a Chinese Welcome to Beijing if you're interested in winter sports.

Yours.

第二节 (满分 25 分)

Paragraph 1:

I started to plot. Then, a great idea occurred to me: getting delivered in a box to my sister's house! I knew if I pulled this off, my grand arrival would be the best Christmas present I could ever give my sister. I frantically started Googling mail companies. Fortunately, I came across a mail company named Couriers Please and to my great amazement their manager agreed to help me to fulfill my dream! The next day, they found a box big enough for me to hide in. The Christmas Spirit strikes again! (86 词)

Paragraph 2:

I hidden in the big box, heard the mailmen ringing my sister's doorbell. They announced they had a delivery for her. When the box was opened and she saw me sitting inside smiling up at her, my sister was at a complete loss for words and burst into tears. I would never forget the look on her face. It was such a gift to be able to attend my sister's graduation to show her my love, and it was a memory that both of us would cherish forever. So never underestimate the power of the Christmas Spirit (85 词)
