

答案

第一部分 听力(每题 1.5 分, 共 30 分)

1---5 CAABC 6---10 BBACA 11---15 BCCAC 16---20 CBABA

第二部分 阅读 (每题 2.5 分 共 50 分)

21---25BBABD 26---30 ACCAD 31---35 BBDAB 36---40 FAGCD

完形填空 (每题 1 分 共 15 分)

41---45 BCABD 46---50 ADCDC 51---55 BDBAC

语法填空 (每题 1.5 分 共 15 分)

56. an 57. to make 58. has grown 59. allowing 60. which 61. abundant

62. were listed 63. in 64. diversity 65. responsibly

小作文 (15 分)

Dear Mr Smith,

Thank you for listening to our voices to revise the English newspaper. I'd like to share my viewpoints with you.

To tell the truth, some columns, such as Science and Pop Culture, are particularly welcomed because we can obtain the latest news of high-technology development as well as diverse civilizations. Therefore, I hope the two sections will be kept. On the other hand, since many readers show a lack of interest in the Business section, could you replace it with a sports column? We can not only keep track of sports news but also get valuable suggestions for building us up by reading that section.

I hope the updated version of the English newspaper will gain more readers in the near future.

Yours,

Li

Hua 读后续写 (25 分)

Paragraph 1:

With our encouragement and the attraction of oats, Charcoal struggled and managed to stand up. Though his eyes were dull with pain, he was brave enough to respond to our efforts. This was surely the force of life over death! Danny, with the pot, marched up the rocky slippery path through the woods, and I steadied (扶稳) injured Charcoal, encouraging him to follow. The hike which was ordinarily just 30 minutes now took over two hours. Charcoal could only hop with three legs for a few yards, and then rest, while we encouraged him to continue. Finally, our barn came into sight.

Paragraph 2:

Upon arriving at the barn, Danny started creating a bed for Charcoal. I hurried to phone the vet to come as soon as possible. After cleaning Charcoal's wounds and medicating him, the vet told us, "His injury would heal, but you'll need to treat the leg every day for several weeks, maybe longer." He showed Danny exactly how to apply the medicine and cover the wounds. When I was watching my son carefully tend Charcoal, a thought just naturally came to mind: Bad things may happen somewhere, but love is everywhere, not only between humans, animals, but also between humans and animals.