第一节 应用文写作 (满分 15 分)

One possible version:

Good afternoon, my dear friends,

My name is Li Hua. I am here to run for the president of our Oral English Club.

I'm confident that I am qualified for this job because I am outgoing, and skilled at organizing different kinds of activities. Besides, I can speak English fluently. If I am lucky enough to be the president, I will organize more activities like English Corner and English Speech Contest, to provide a platform for us to improve our English oral skills and show our English ability. I sincerely hope you will vote for me.

Thank you.

第二节: 概要写作 (满分 25 分)

One possible version:

Drivers tend to have horrible road manners while driving. (要点一) Road politeness requires patience to calm down and helps create a harmonious atmosphere, which is necessary but ignored by many drivers. (要点二) Yet misplaced politeness can sometimes put some road users who aren't following traffic rules in danger. (要点三) With the increasing number of cars, road politeness should be remembered by all road users. (要点四)

听力原文:

Text 1

W: I'm having difficulty studying with my baby brother crying all the time. I wish I had a nice, quiet place to study.

M: Try playing some soft music while you study. It works for me. I can't do it in front of the TV, though.

Text 2

M: Do you want me to grab your books from your drawer, Anne? It looks like your hands are full.

W: Oh, thank you. Can you just put them in my backpack and close my drawer?

Text 3

M: I think I'm ready to start working out more. Once a week is just not enough.

W: Why don't you start with two days a week for now? Eventually, you will be able to manage every other day.

Text 4

M: Are you serious? I was writing down my notes. I wasn't talking. You can't blame me for something I didn't do.

W: I'm sorry that you feel that way, George. But this is not the first time I've heard noise from your direction.

Text 5

W: I think it would be great for both of us to go somewhere and relax for a little while. What do you say? Wouldn't it be fun?

M: It sounds like a great idea. I just don't know if it's the smartest thing to do right now.

Text 6

W: Didn't you see that traffic light? You drove the car right through it! We almost hit that big truck! I was so scared.

M: I'm sorry! I fell asleep for one second. It's late, and I'm tired. (6) We've driven ten hours already! (7) I need to stop and rest.

W: That's okay. I was just worried that we were going to have an accident. Let's stop at the next gas station. I can drive the rest of the trip. We only have three more hours until we're home. (7) This is a long drive.

M: It is! But I'm glad we got to visit our family. Maybe next time we should fly in a plane instead! That would only be a four-hour trip.

Text 7

W: Sometimes I just can't figure out why some people always buy famous brands such as LV or Nike. What do you think about that, Tom?

M: Maybe they think that famous brands can make them feel good. You know, producers of famous brands spend a lot of money on their advertising. They want people to know that they are good enough to afford the best.

W: I can understand the influence of advertisements on people. But some people do not make that much money but spend half of their incomes on famous brands. (8)

M: Oh, I see. Some people probably need to wear brand-name clothing to feel special and fashionable. They don't want to be a nobody in the crowd. (9)

W: Well, that's one of the reasons they spend so much. They want to keep up with changing fashions, so they buy regardless of the price.

M: As far as I am concerned, I will buy things that are high quality at reasonable prices. (10) There are also many cheap things with good quality. I never want to be a victim of advertisements.

W: I couldn't agree more.

Text 8

M: Oh, no. What happened in here, Alexa? Why are there some dead plants?(11)

W: I know. Every plant comes in alive and ends up dead. I definitely do not have a green thumb.

M: People always say that, but it's not that hard to keep house plants. What did you do to care for this one?

W: That one had a big flower on it, so I put it in the sunlight.

M: This is a winter plant from north China. It doesn't do well in direct sunlight. Just move it here. Didn't you look up how to care for it when you got it?

W: No. I just thought it was pretty, and it was doing OK in the shop.

M: And this one here is all yellow. That means you gave it too much water. (12)

W: Too much water? I think if it doesn't need the water, it doesn't have to drink it.

M: That's not how plants work. I'm afraid the root system of this one is destroyed. You'll have to throw this one away. Look, here's an app with plant information. (13)

Text 9

M: In conclusion, we hope to have all major cities in China sorting their garbage by the year 2020. (14) This will be a big improvement in our communities. Our children and grandchildren deserve to live in a beautiful environment, just like our ancestors did. Let's make our country clean again!

W: A question for you, Mr. Tang!

M: Yes, Ms. Chu? (15)

W: As a resident of Zhejiang province, I see the waste that has piled up in our neighborhoods over the years. As a community member, I want to do something about it. But as a reporter, I have interviewed many people in this region. (15) And I have found out that they just don't know how to recycle. How are you going to solve this problem?

M: That's a good question. I want everyone here to know that we have already come up with a solution. We have employed hundreds of volunteers to teach everyone. They are available to come to your home and show you how to correctly sort trash. (16) One of our top volunteers has also designed a new kind of trash bag. Each bag has a unique code on it. If our trash collectors find a bag that has not been properly sorted, they will scan the code with their phone. (17) The code tells us who the bag belongs to. We will then send a volunteer to the person's home for assistance and training.

Text 10

(18) Hello, folks. Thanks for coming to this staff meeting. I want to update all of you on Mrs. Smith's situation. (18) As most of you know, Mrs. Smith was told that she had cancer a few months ago. She went to the doctor because of the pain in her arm, (19) and a tumor was found in her upper lung near her shoulder. Mrs. Smith has two young children and a husband. Most of you know her family very well, since she has worked at our company for over five years. (20) First, I want to say how impressed I am with your kindness to her family. For the last three months, someone has brought her family a meal to eat every single night! Your concern for her and her loved ones moves me. Mrs. Smith is very thankful for all your help during this difficult time. And lastly, I want to give you some good news. The doctor told Mrs. Smith that she is much better. She will have an operation in two weeks. If all goes well she will survive. Thank you all for caring!
