读后续写参考（一）

Paragraph 1:

The night passed away, and the morning dawned, and yet no news came. Mom kept pacing up and down in the room, looking out of the window anxiously and nervously. At the thought of his little boy who might be threatened by wild bears, she felt a lump in her throat. Outside of the window, a howling storm was sweeping crazily, with the loud shouts from all parties echoing in every corner of the village. Their coats and helmets were all wet through with rains and sweats. Exhausted as they were, none of them ever paused for a rest. (86w)

Paragraph 2:

About seven in the morning, villagers made arrangements for a final search. This time, they found themselves walking on a foreign path. All at once, a man shouted with wild excitement as he found berries on the ground. Following the berries, they soon found the little wanderer in the dark corner of a dark cave, shivering and weeping in fear. "There! There!" the father sprang to his feet and dashed towards the boy, holding him into his arms tightly. At the sight of his father and all the familiar villagers, the boy eventually beamed a relieved and tired smile, with tears blurring his vision. (92w)
