Dear principal,

I wish to make a suggestion that we should start a school art gallery, which I think will improve students' artistic interest.

There are many students who have a preference for painting in our school. The school art gallery can provide these students with a very good platform to display their own paintings, and through the art gallery, other students may not only get a chance to admire the artistic achievements but also can widen their knowledge, at the same time, our campus culture can be spread. If you are to offer such an opportunity to the students who are fond of art, I believe the art exhibition will work well.

I would appreciate it if you can take my suggestion into account.

Yours faithfully,

Li Hua

第二节（满分 25 分）

【参考范文】

Many years later, the boy finally returned. Feeling tired, he went to see the apple tree. At the sight of him, the tree said regretfully: “I’m sorry, boy, but now I no longer have anything for you, no apples, no trunk.” “It doesn’t matter. I have no intention of getting anything from you this time. As you know, I’m getting old and nothing is better than a comfortable place to rest.” said the boy. Hearing this, the tree smiled with relief, adding: “My dying trunk is the right one for you. Please come here and have a seat.” The boy did as told and the tree burst into tears, due to the fact that she could still devote herself to her boy.

The apple tree is our mother, who devotes all herself to us. When we are young, she tries her utmost to take care of us and play with us. When we grow up, we leave her for some reason and only come back when necessary or in trouble. But she is always there, waiting for us and ready to offer what she owns without complaint. Never does she ask for rewards, instead, it is our happiness that she desires for. So, try to put ourselves in her shoes and learn to show concern for her.

听力原文

Text 1

M: Shall we go to see a film tonight?

W: I'd like to, but I think it is more worthwhile learning practical skills from my father at home.

Text 2

M: Well now, before we order, let's agree first that we each pay our own bill.

W: OK, I agree.

M: And what do you say, Betty and Steven?

Text 3

W: I've come to this Chinese restaurant many times. I like sweet-and-sour fish, fried noodles... And the mushroom soup here is delicious.

M: You're really a big fan of Chinese food. Well, you do the ordering.

Text 4

W: I've read the comment on this movie. I must say that I completely disagree with the writer's dislike of the work.

M: I read it, too. And I am in favor of his opinion.

Text 5

M: Did you stay with your parents at the weekend?

W: No, I did some walking up in Scotland.

M: Did you go by yourself?

W: No, I was going to go with my cousin Dave, but I went with my classmate Debbie instead.

Text 6

M: I bought a pumpkin, and I am planning to make it into a lantern tomorrow.

W: Oh, that's right. Halloween is coming!

M: Yeah, the school is letting us use the gym for the Halloween party. I am so excited about it, but I have not decided what to wear this year. What about you? You looked so great in that Cat Woman costume last year.

W: Me? I'm still not sure. Last year's party was great, but I will be at home with my family this year.

Text 7

W: Hey, James. I heard your wife just had a baby. Congratulations!

M: Thanks, Jenny. We're still trying to get used to having a baby around the house. We certainly don't sleep as much as we used to.

W: Well, I remember when Mike and I had our first child. It's a lot of work at first, but you'll get used to it.

M: Yeah. I'm sure you're right. Thanks for the encouragement.

Text 8

M: Say, what's your favorite sport?

W: It's hard to say. I like volleyball a lot, but I guess I like tennis better.

M: Are you good at it?

W: Yes, quite good. How about a tennis game sometime?

M: Sorry, I just like to watch almost all kinds of ball games—football, baseball, basketball, golf...I'm strictly a spectator (观众).

W: You mean you never do anything yourself?

M: Well, I only like to do some jogging in the fresh morning air.

W: Ah, you're an early bird then.

M: You are quite right. As an elderly person, I always get up at dawn.

W: But you look like you are in your forties.

M: I'm flattered. I'm almost 60.

Text 9

W: Oh, Mike, you look so tired.

M: I was up all night, trying to get ready for my chemistry test this morning.

W: Any idea how you did on it?

M: Yeah. Professor Porter's already put grades on her door, and I...well, I could have done better.

W: That really surprises me. You know so much about science.

M: Yeah, well, it's not surprising to me. I know the material well, but when it comes to taking tests, I never do well.

W: You should consider taking some courses at the Study Skills Center. It's run by some professors that teach undergraduates some skills that help them do better in classes. Last year, I took a course from them on how to do research on the Internet, and another one on writing term papers. They were really useful.

M: What other kinds of courses do they offer?

W: They also have a class on test-taking skills.

M: Wow, that's exactly what I want. I should go there now and try to talk to someone.

W: You can go there tomorrow. Right now, you should go back to your house and catch up on your sleep.

M: I think you're right.

Text 10

M: This is What's Trending Today. That is the sound of Big Ben. People from London like to call the ringing of Big Ben "bongs". They mark the start of a new hour. Big Ben started making its bongs 158 years ago. But beginning on August 21st, it will go silent for four years. The bell will ring for the last time at 12 noon. The bell will be disconnected from the clock as crews launch a major repair project in the tower. The clock, however, will continue to tell the time, silently. The only time people in London will hear the bells will be on Remembrance Sunday (和平纪念日), which falls on November 12th this year, and New Year's Eve. The repair project will cost about $40 million, said Steve Jaggs. He is known as "The Keeper of the Great Clock." Jaggs said the goal is to keep the building safe and the famous timepiece (钟) working for future generations to enjoy. The last time the bell stopped ringing for repairs was in 2007. It was also silent for the funerals of former Prime Ministers Winston Churchill and Margaret Thatcher. There was reaction to the silencing of Big Ben on social media. Joana reacted to the news on Twitter. She proposed that there be "one minute of silence for the lost bongs of Big Ben". And that's What's Trending Today. I'm Dan Friedell.
