Tourists have used paint, rocks, or even keys to write on the Luxor Temple in Egypt, the Colosseum in Rome, Stonehenge in the UK, memorial stones at the bottom of Qomolangma, and many, many other places. Thousands of tourist sites are being destroyed by tourists who “love them to death.” I have three words for people like this: please stop it. If you want to leave a mark on the world, do it by changing someone's life with kindness and love. Pass kindness along to future generations, not destruction.

conclusion

One growing problem is tourists who want to prove that they have visited a destination. Tourists have used paint, rocks, or even keys to write on the Luxor Temple in Egypt, the Colosseum in Rome, Stonehenge in the UK, and many, many other places. Thousands of tourist sites have been destroyed by tourists who "love them to death". I have three words to describe them: they are destroyers. If you want to leave a mark on the world, do it by changing the world for the better, not destruction (破坏).

Another problem has been tourists disturbing (打扰) local people. Tourists often wander around and take pictures of local people without their permission. For example, Chiang Mai University in Thailand and Yonsei University in South Korea have great numbers of tourists who disturb the local people. Tourists walking through their libraries and other public areas, taking pictures of people studying, disturbing their studies. Another example is Sanlitun, a neighbourhood in Beijing. Tourists love to party there late into the night, making it difficult for local people to sleep. Words for tourists like this: please be considerate. Have fun in a way that does not disturb others.

The number of problems from tourists is endless: walking in large groups without considering others who need to walk by, crossing roads without thinking of local traffic laws, and many others. The problem of the terrible tourist is to make sure that you are not the most polite tourist possible. Remember, whenever you step outside your country's borders, you are representing (代表) your country to the rest of the world.

One possible version

Dear teachers and students,

On behalf of the Students' Union, I'd like to appeal for your active involvement in being a good tourist.

Though tourism brings many benefits, it also causes some problems. For example, to prove their presence, some tourists destroy the tourist sites by using paint, rocks to leave ugly marks on. Worse still, some tourists wander around randomly and even party later, thus disturbing the locals.

It's high time that we should be the best, kindest, most polite tourists. Let's join our hands and take action immediately.

The Students' Union

Thanks!
