M: I must say, Miss, the food was great and I've never had better service.

W: Well, thank you, Sir. I'll pass your praise on to the cook and the manager. And thanks too for the tip.

(Text 2)

W: I'd like to take a trip to Florida for my spring break. Can you give me some ideas about where to go?

M: I could tell you about the places I've visited, but I think you'd get a professional to make your arrangements.

(Text 3)

W: Excuse me, I would like to change this purple sweater which I bought here yesterday for the white one.

M: Well, let's see. The purple one is 140 dollars, but the white one is 30 dollars cheaper.

(Text 4)

M: Let's go into this shoe store. I need some shoes to match my new suit.

W: That's a good idea. I'm so tired from shopping that I'll be glad to sit down, but I don't need any shoes.

(Text 5)

W: Good morning, can I help you?

M: Yes, I'd like to know something about the weather in Arizona in the coming week.

W: Well, it will be fairly hot and there will be much rain.

M: I see. Thanks very much for your help.

(Text 6)

W: Dad, did Grandma go to university when she was young?

M: No, she wasn't encouraged to do that.

W: Why not?

M: Well, at that time it was considered improper for a woman to have a higher education. Grandma got married when she was 18 and she spent all her life taking care of her husband and the kids.

W: You mean she never had a job?

M: No, women were told that they could not have a family and career at the same time.

W: Mother could. She has a family and she is also a teacher. Isn't that a career?

M: Yes. Times have changed. Nowadays women are permitted to do things that they were not allowed to do before.

(Text 7)

W: Alex, I'll help Emma with her packing.

M: The packing? No, no. Don't worry. We may have to change our plan.

W: Why?

M: We may not go to Scotland; we may go to Wales or England. We can decide after the weather forecast.

W: OK. Is it time to watch the forecast for tomorrow on TV?

M: Yes, listen. Northern Scotland will be cold, and there may be snow over high ground.

W: In the north of England it will be a wet day and rain will move into Wales during the afternoon.

M: Eastern England will be generally dry, and it will be a bright clear day with sunshine, but it may rain during the evening.

W: In the southwest of England it may be foggy during the morning, but afternoon will be clear. It may be windy later in the day.

M: Now, where are we going?

W: It's up to you.

(Text 8)

W: Hi, morning, Tom! I haven't seen you for a long time. Where have you been?

M: Oh, I was sent to Shanghai on business on Monday last week and just got back last night.

W: Oh, no wonder you look a little tired.

M: Yes. I was always travelling around those days to introduce our products or hold talks with others. More often than not, I didn't go back to the hotel until eleven o'clock.

W: Wow, you were too busy, but what's the result?

M: Not bad. More than twenty companies have signed contracts with us, worth $ 83 million.

W: Great. Congratulations, Tom!

M: Not me, but all of us, because the quality of our products has helped us win their trust.

W: That's true. We can't depend on someone alone, but all the workers. Only when we unite as one can we develop our company and have a better tomorrow.

M: Yes. It is Friday today and I'll go to ask the CEO to stress the importance of the quality of our products at the staff meeting this afternoon.

W: OK. But have a good rest, too.

(Text 9)

M: Why do we have to finish this proposal tonight? It's already eight o'clock. Can't we complete it tomorrow?

W: It has to go to the post office by midnight. We must make sure that all the figures are correct.

M: But they've been checked over and over again.

W: The finance office made some changes late this afternoon. We have to look at them.

M: Why did they wait until the last minute?

W: The proposal hadn't been sent up to them before. They weren't very happy about that, either.

M: Well, all right. I just hope it won't take too long.

W: Here, we'll have to go into your office. My office hasn't been cleaned yet.

M: No, mine hasn't been cleaned, either. We can use Jane's, I guess.

W: All right. You take the adding machine, and I'll read the figures to you.

M: What are you going to do in case of a mistake? The proposal has been typed already. It looks ready to go.

W: We'll just have to write in any corrections by hand.

M: That won't look very neat. Do you really think we're going to get this business?

W: I certainly hope so.

M: Well, let's get to work.

W: Yes, let's. I'm going to start with the costs for the products. Now the first figure is ...

(Text 10)

W: Early on a Saturday morning, much of the world remains in bed, enjoying an extra hour or two of sleep. But a few Americans are up and preparing for the hunt. They plan to be the first to arrive at the yard sales. What are these yard-sale shoppers hunting for? Second-hand treasures.

Yard-sale shoppers aren't the only people who like used goods. Westerners all love to buy others' stuff. Even the wealthy willingly search through used goods looking for a unique treasure. Some people buy used goods simply to save money. Others hope to find a valuable antique. Still others look for items to add to their collections.

Second-hand goods can be found in all sorts of places. Flea market is another hot spot for collections. Shopping at a flea market for the first time can be overwhelming. You have to look through it all yourself to find anything worth taking home. For antique lovers, however, finding the right treasure makes all that looking worthwhile. More valuable pieces are typically found in antique auctions. You can find them in cities or online. In today's world of technology, someone in California can buy a mirror from a shop in Chicago.

You don't have to spend money enjoying second-hand shopping. A morning wandering around at yard sales or an afternoon at antique shops and flea markets can be a mini history lesson. Each piece brings the past to life. You never know what treasures you're going to find in someone else's trash.

书面表达

I love traveling

Everyone has their own hobbies, such as collecting stamps and fishing. As for me, I love traveling. My reasons are as follows. First of all, living in a social environment with great pressure, we need our own time, give ourselves a relaxed holiday, enjoy life and discover a different world. In addition, traveling allows me to absorb different customs in the world. As a saying goes, reading thousands of books is not equal to traveling thousands of miles. Honestly speaking, I benefit a lot by traveling. First it not only cultivates my taste but also increase my knowledge. Second, dealing with all kinds of people during the journey helps me grow up.
