It's congratulations on becoming an adult. The girl is wearing bright colors. It took her a long time to do her hair and make-up, and to get dressed. She is going to meet her family soon. "Being an adult" means being self-supporting, and responsible for actions and decisions.

Carla advises Limei to change her dress and shoes. This is because the weather is hot and they will march along the streets and dance for a long time.

It's a treat for eyes. People can guess riddles on the paper to get gifts, watch the dragon and lion dances, as well as eat yuanxiao, a kind of sweet dumplings.

Conversation 1

Interviewer: Miss. congratulations on becoming an adult! You look amazing in your kimono. The bright colours are terrific!

Girl: Really? That's kind of you to say so. Thank you.

Interviewer: You're welcome. Did it take you much time to get ready today?

Girl: Yes, actually. I spent hours doing my hair and make-up. and getting dressed. But it was worth it, because I wanted to look my best at the Interviewer: Oh, you look great! Now that the ceremony is over, are you going to celebrate with your family and friends?

Girl: Yes. I'm going to meet my family soon, and we're having a party tonight.

Interviewer: So what does "being an adult" mean to you?

Interviewer: Well, I think it means being self-sufficient and responsible for your actions and decisions, and ...[fade out]

The answers to the questions are specific and rich

Conversation 2

Li Mei: I'm ready for Carnival, Carla. Shall we go and join the parade now?

Carla: You must be joking, Li Mei! That dress is too thick. Do you realise that it's 35°C out there? Also, - we're going to march along the streets for hours and dance until midnight. You need to change.

Li Mei :OK. What should I wear?

Carla: Wear something light and cool. I also think you need to wear more comfortable shoes. It'll be too tiring to walk or dance for a long time in those shoes.

Li Mei: Hmm ... You're right. Can you wait for me? I'll change right away.

Carla: Sure.

Li Mei: Carla, how do I look now!

Carla: Fantastic! Now let's go and enjoy this festival! It's going to be so exciting!

Conversation 3

Guide: Now, everyone. when we turn this next corner, you'll all have a real treat for the eyes.

Man : Wow! These lanterns are amazing!

Woman: Excuse me, Miss Lin. Can you tell me what's written on the pieces of paper?
Are they wishes?

Guide: Not exactly. They're riddles. Language feature If you guess correctly, you can

A guide usually introduce the place on his own. Sometimes, there is the interaction between the guide and tourists.

Guide: Oh, they can do many things. They can watch the dragon and lion dances, and also eat yuanxiao with their family. Yuanxiao is a kind of sweet dumpling. The Chinese word "yuan" means "family unity and happiness".
Sometimes, there will be sentences like "On your left/right you will see...", "Turn the corner here, you will...", "If you look up, you will...", "Take a look at..."

It's my great honour to share with you the festival—the Mid-autumn Festival. The Mid-autumn Festival, an ancient festival with a long history in China, is usually celebrated on the fifteenth day in August of the lunar year. It begins with a very interesting story. Long ago... From then on, Chinese people celebrate it on the day to memorize that important event. When the festival approaching, you will find yourself surrounded by various mooncakes in the streets or malls. People will gether together to enjoy the mooncakes at home, admire the moon, visit the lantern fair, fire the firework...
