M: So no more regret now?

W: Don't remind me of that. This would be the last time I cut any classes for a basketball game.

M: Come on. Don't be so hard on yourself. Enjoy your life.

Text 2.

W: Excuse me. My wallet was stolen.

M: Ok. Please fill out this form to report the theft. We'll contact you if we find it.

Text 3.

W: All this traffic really gives me a headache.

M: No kidding. This morning I was stuck on the bus for almost an hour.

W: Tell me about it. I'm thinking of buying a car.

Text 4.

W: I'm going to Beihai park. Is this the right bus, please?

M: No, you're going the wrong way. You want a 103 from Beijing zoo. You get off at the next stop, cross the street, and you'll find the stop not far on your right hand side.

W: Thank you.

Text 5.

M: Hello, I want to book two tickets for the train to Beijing.

W: Non-stop tickets are already sold out. You can just take the train from here Nanjing to Tianjin, and then take a connection to Beijing there.

M: Really? That sounds good. Thanks for your advice.

W: Not at all.

Text 6:

M: How much is this bicycle?

W: 150 yuan.

M: That's a little steep... Can't you give it to me for a little less?

W: It's like new. If you bought a new one, it would cost more than double.

M: What about 100 yuan?

W: I'm afraid that's not really possible. The lowest price is 130 yuan.

M: That's out of my range. I'll go somewhere else.

Text 7.

W: Good morning. My name is Mary.

M: Good morning. Would you mind if I ask you some questions?

W: Of course not.

M: What do you go to America for?

W: I'd like to study for my master's degree.

M: Will you get any kind of scholarship?

W: Yes. The school has provided me with a partial scholarship. And my father is ready to cover the rest expenses. Here is the bank account proof.

M: All right. Are you planning to work in America after graduation?

W: No, sir. I'm sure to come back to China as soon as I get my degree. Anyway, it's my hometown. I think it's better to start up my own business in my familiar place than in other countries.

M: Ok. Now, complete the form and we'll inform you at once.

W: Thank you very much.

Text 8.

M: We'd like to rent a flat near the university.

W: Are you looking for somewhere for two people?

M: Yes, we are. We've heard that there are places for 80 to 100 pounds a month.

W: Yes. Do you have any other requirements?

M: We'd preferably like to live in a quiet street.

W: How many rooms do you need in the flat?

M: We'll need two bedrooms. The kitchen and dining room should be separated.

W: Ok. Let's just go through them. The first on the list costs 80 pounds a month, but it's on a noisy street.

M: How far away is it from the campus?

W: It's about two miles away. Here's one that's about half a mile from the campus. The cost is 100 pounds a month and it's on a small street, just off a main street.

M: That sounds ideal. Can we go to have a look at it? We'd like to see it before making a final decision.

W: Of course. I can take you there.

Text 9.

M: What would you like me to do?

W: First, could you peel the vegetables?

M: Ok, I'll peel the vegetables and you chop them. I'm terrible at chopping vegetables. They can be either too big or too small. ...Wow! You can chop vegetable really quickly, just like professional chefs on TV!

W: After you've peeled the vegetables, could you fry the meat in a little oil? Fry the meat until it is cooked, and then we'll add some spices to flavor it. Look! The one on the left is very spicy, so we must be careful about how much we add.

M: Yes. We don't want everyone to burn their mouths and have to drink gallons of water! OK. I'm really to do the meat. Should I cook it over a low flame?

W: Cook it over a high flame, so that it will be ready quickly. Keep stirring the meat around the frying pan. Don't let the meat stick to the bottom of the pan.

M: Right. What are you doing over there?

W: I'm mixing the sauce. It's my specialty. I make it according to my own secret recipe!

Text 10.

For the first time, the UK has replaced the US as the most preferred overseas study destination for Chinese students, a report released Sunday showed. In the survey for the annual Report on Chinese Students'

Overseas Study, the UK was preferred by 42% of students surveyed, up by 1 percentage point from last year. Study in the US was preferred by 37% of students surveyed, down by 6 percentage points. Australia, at 16%, tied as the third most popular destinations for overseas study, followed by Canada, Japan, Germany and Singapore. The report put it that the major reason for the change in students' preferences from the US to the UK lies in the tense Sino-US relations in the past two years and the UK's advantages, such as the reopening of the Post Study Work Visa and quicker graduation requirements.

Dear Adam,

Sorry to learn that you are having trouble in communicating with classmates, I'm writing to give you a helping hand.

I quite understand your depression, since it's quite common for a shy student like you to have difficulty associating with others. Probably, your classmates just feel unsure whether you're interested in their topics. To help you out, I highly suggest you step out of comfortable zone and take an active part in after-class activities where you can naturally establish a closer relationship and find common talking materials.

Hopefully, you can find your problem solved soon! (95 words)

Yours,

Li Hua

读后续写参考 (一)

He was sentenced to be torn by a lion in the public arena (竞技场). Sitting at the corner of arena, Androcles was overcome by a strong sense of fear and despair, with his heart beating wildly. When the lion was released from the cage, a thunderous applause burst out from the audience. "There is no way out!" He sighed deeply, the last gleam of light fading away in his eyes. Taking a deep breath, Androcles stood up and walked to his enemy with slow and heavy steps. (73words)

However, the lion didn't act as most had imagined. No roaring, no fighting, not even a sign of anger. It seemed that the lion had forgotten its mission as a beast. "Go! Go! Eat him!" The audience kept yelling crazily. Much to their surprise, the lion wagged his great tail gently at Androcles and licked his feet. "It's you! My friend!" Androcles cried in relief. At the very moment, the lion carried him on his back, stormed out of the arena and disappeared in the distance. (77words)

读后续写参考 (二)

He was sentenced to be torn by a lion in the public arena (竞技场). When the time for his destruction came, Androcles stood in the middle of the arena calmly awaiting his fate. Presently a dreadful yell was heard, which made the audience start to tremble. A huge lion then sprang out of a cage, and rushed forward upon its victim with flaming eyes. It stopped, eyes staring at the poor slave. Then came a thunderous applause. Apparently, the audience in the arena were waiting for some blood. (74 words)

However, the lion didn't act as most had imagined. Instead of springing upon the man, and tearing him to pieces, it gently licked Androcles like a dog! The governor of the city ordered Androcles to explain how the fierce beast had, in a moment, become as harmless as a lamb. Androcles told his adventures in the forests. The audience were so delighted with his story that they begged the governor to pardon Androcles. This he did, and he also offered Androcles the lion which had twice spared his life. (80 words)
