

武昌区 2023 届高三五月调考英语参考答案

第一部分 听力（共 20 小题，每小题 1.5 分 满分 30 分）

1-5 BBCAB      6-10 ABCBB      11-15 CBCAC      16-20 CAACA

第二部分 阅读理解（共两节，满分 50 分）

第一节（共 15 小题：每小题 2.5 分，满分 37.5 分）

A 篇： 21 -23    DCA      B 篇： 24-27    CBDB

C 篇： 28-31 BCBC      D 篇： 32-35    DDAA

第二节（共 5 小题：每小题 2.5 分，满分 12.5 分）    36 -40    BCEDF

第三部分 语言运用（共两节， 满分 30 分）

第一节 （共 15 小题：每小题 1 分，满分 15 分）

41- 45    CDBCA      46-50 DBACB      51-55 DACAD

第二节 （共 10 小题：每小题 1.5 分，满分 15 分）

56. was estimated    57. fastest      58. a      59. Although/Though/While      60. responsibility

61. using      62. mainly    63. with      64. it      65. generated

第四部分 写作（共两节，满分 40 分）

第一节 （满分 15 分）

Dear Sir or Madam,

I am Li Hua, a Chinese high school student, feeling so lucky to have visited your museum which left a good impression on me. I am writing with the intention of telling you the discovered some errors on your signs.

During the visit, I found that some Chinese on your signs are improperly used and there are even some spelling mistakes, which will contribute to misunderstandings for visitors. To make matters worse, the misuse will especially upset Chinese tourists, making them unwilling to have a return visit. Consequently, the fame of your museum will be ruined. So I do hope you can turn to Chinese experts for help for the sake of finding out the mistakes and correcting them as well.

It would be better if you could take my proposal into due consideration.

Your faithfully ,

Li Hua

第二节：（满分 25 分）

He sat down next to the fox and started talking to it in a soft voice. He gently stroked its fur and, after a few minutes, managed to pull the thorn out. The fox licked his hand gratefully and stared at him with its big, brown eyes. From that day on, the fox would follow Jack everywhere he went. Tom's friendship with the animals of the forest was the talk of the village. People would often see him wandering around with a pack of wolves or sitting with a family of bears. They were amazed by his ability to befriend animals that were supposed to be wild and dangerous.

As he grew older, Jack's love for animals grew stronger. He realized that animals were not just pets or creatures to be hunted, but they were his friends and companions. He started volunteering at an animal shelter, where he would help care for injured and abandoned animals. He also worked with local conservation groups to protect the forests and wildlife in his area. Jack's love for animals had brought him a sense of purpose and fulfillment that he had never experienced before. He knew that he had made a difference in the lives of many animals, and he was grateful for the friendship and companionship of his animal friends.

听力稿

Text 1

M: Hey, Claire. What's up? You look worried about something.

W: Oh, Joseph! I have a physics test this afternoon and I haven't studied enough! I hope I don't fail!

M: Hey, don't panic. You still have some time. Let me help you study some more. I'm good at physics.

Text 2

W: When does Jane plan to come? I haven't seen her for ages.

M: As soon as possible, I think. She'll attend a meeting in our city this Friday.

W: Really? When she comes, we can hold a party to welcome her at our house.

Text 3

W: Harry, what time do you get up?

M: I normally get up at 6 o'clock but sometimes I have to be up by five.

W: Do you practice yoga in the morning?

M: Yes. I usually practice it half an hour later after I get up.

Text 4

W: Tom, I think I need a new dress to wear to Sarah's party.

M: When will the party be held? Your friend Cathy will also go with you?

W: Yeah. Many of my classmates will attend that party next Saturday.

Text 5

W: I plan to change the team meeting to Friday afternoons.

M: Well, you know, people on flexible time often choose to leave early on Fridays. And concentration probably won't be as good at the end of the week.

Text 6

W: I wish we could afford a holiday this year. These islands look amazing!

M: Yes. If only we had £3,000!

W: If I were rich, we'd spend every winter together on a beautiful island.

M: Really? I'd rather go skiing in the Alps. I don't feel like staying on an island. It is dull. Well anyway, we can't afford it. If you hadn't bought so many clothes, we'd have more money for holidays.

W: But I like clothes! Would you rather I wore a suit all the time, like you?

M: What's wrong with my suits?

Text 7

W: My Australian friend came yesterday.

M: Great. What's her name?

W: Carol.

M: What a nice name! What's she like?

W: She's really nice. She's fond of dancing, so am I. And we both like tennis and listening to music.

M: That sounds great. I saw you with someone this morning. Was it Carol? What does she look like?

W: She's quite tall and slim, and she's got long brown hair.

M: No, it wasn't her then. Now we are all going out tomorrow, aren't we? Shall we go for a coffee or shall we go to the cinema? What would she like to do?

W: Um, I'll ask her tonight and tell you tomorrow.

Text 8

M: Can you tell me about the accommodation, please?

W: Yes, of course. All the rooms are doubles. Some of them have a mountain view.

M: I see. Are there any family rooms?

W: No, I'm afraid not. But they can put extra beds in your room for children.

M: And what restaurants are there?

W: There are five different restaurants—Italian, Chinese, Thai, India and America. You can eat lunch and supper in any of them, but I'm afraid you can only have breakfast in the Chinese restaurant.

M: It's said that the center offers water sports. Can I play other sports, badminton, for example?

W: I'm sorry. I'm afraid you can't. They only have water sports at the center.

Text 9

M: Hi, my name is Stephen. Do you work at New Impressions? I just started there this week—in the marketing department.

W: Sure, I do. How is everything going in the first week?

M: So far, so good. How do you like working in New Impressions?

W: It's a great place to work. I'm in the middle of a major project in the art department right now.

M: Yeah, I heard about it in the interview. But do you like working for Ms. White?

W: Oh, she's great.

M: She seemed so business like in the interview, but every one else seemed so informal.

W: That's probably for the interview. Actually, she's pretty easy-going. And it's not all business. We do a monthly get-together and do something fun—a Friday afternoon party, see a movie or play a ball game.

Text 10

M: Good morning, students! It's Jack here, the football coach here at Lincoln High. Principal Jones said I could make an announcement today. Of course, our big game is this weekend, and a lot of you—well, I hope all of you—are looking forward to it. Anyway, I want to tell you my favorite quote, one that I heard when I was in school. "Education is what remains after one has forgotten what one has learned in school." This phrase is from a really smart guy, Albert Einstein. In my job, I work with athletes, but I always tell them not to forget their studies, too. Appreciate these days that you have to study and learn. That's what school is about. Make the most of it. Have fun with your friends, be sociable at get-togethers, go to football games. But just be sure to get your homework done and listen and participate in class. You' re headed for bigger and better things. Some say college is a waste of time, but I don't think so. There are things you learn in the process of learning that are priceless. There's an education that goes on beyond what we read in textbooks and listen to in lectures. Life is one big educational process. And that's what Einstein was trying to say. Have a great day!