第四部分 写作（满分 25 分）

Armed with a flashlight one night, they found a big fallen tree in the park. Tali asked Anna to focus the flashlight on the tree trunk when she pulled off some bark. There, a pretty little beetle, illuminated by the flashlight, came into Anna's view. Tali's gentle guidance and reassuring presence made the task more manageable, and with each beetle they found, Anna's fear lessened.

They carefully captured two live bugs and put them in a jar. As they walked out of the park, Anna realized that she had gained not only knowledge about beetles but also a newfound confidence in herself.

Then came the day for Tali and Anna to present their research at the fair: Anna stood next to Tali, holding the beetle jar, no longer afraid. Tali felt quite nervous at first, with her palms sweating and her heart pounding violently against her chest. Thinking of the moments she practiced the talk with Anna, she took a deep breath and began to tell the audience all the facts they'd learned about beetles. Their efforts paid off and the presentation was a huge success. The once-daunting project turned into an experience that helped them triumph over their own lifelong fear and become good friends.
