Text 1

M: How much does a one-way ticket cost from London to York?

W: Start from £15 when you book in advance, up to £45 on the day of departure.

M: I can't get the discount then.

W: I'm afraid so.

Text 2

M: Did you buy that dress, Sophie?

W: Unfortunately not, Luke. They had one in my size, but when I looked at the price, I realized that I couldn't really afford it. It was such a pity as it looked really good on me.

Text 3

M: Did you get your living room painted, Lydia

W: No, Peter. I've bought all the paint, but I'm still looking for someone to paint it.

M: You know that I'm always here to help. I'm not a professional, but I'm sure I can do a good job.

Text 4

W: What did you think of the geography trip?

M: I felt it lived up to my expectations. As far as the coursework we did was concerned, I really feel I know what I'm doing now.

W: I felt the same way.

Text 5

W: I think we're almost ready for the presentation tomorrow. Just a few more things. The meeting will start at 9 sharp. So could you double-check the meeting room today?

M: Yes, I'll go right away.

Text 6

W: Have you tried that new restaurant, Paul? The review I read said it was really good.

M: It must have been the same review I read. That's why I went last night. I was disappointed, though, Beth. The service was very slow, and the music was too loud. As for the food, I didn't think it was anything special.

W: I was thinking of going there for my birthday dinner. Maybe I'll choose somewhere else instead.

M: I can recommend a small Italian place nearby. The atmosphere is much better, and the food is excellent.

Text 7

W: I loved the architecture, didn't you?

M: It was so unusual. I mean, when you think of what's being put up in cities nowadays, you know, all the shopping centers and places, then you wonder whether anyone actually bothers to design buildings like that anymore.

W: That's right. And the atmosphere inside was just so quiet --- you could really take your time admiring everything on display. Those 18th-century vases were absolutely brilliant. You'd never find craftsmanship like that in any modern factory.

M: Yeah, they really caught my attention, too. In fact, I'm planning to do some research on ancient vases. So I'll borrow some books from the library later.

Text 8

W: So how was your holiday?

M: Great, but it didn't start that way.

W: What happened?

M: Well, I almost missed my plane because I didn't hear the announcement that they'd change the gate. Then when we landed, I was going through passport control, I couldn't find my passport at first --- I just forgot where I'd put it.

W: You must be more careful next time.

M: You're right. And on the first night at the hotel, the people next door were arguing about something, which kept me awake. But after that, it was all lovely.

W: So what did you do for the rest of the trip?

M: Well, the hotel staff recommended some local attractions to me. The next day, I went hiking in the mountains and took lots of photos. On the third day, I visited a beautiful beach. In the evening, I tried some seafood at a nearby restaurant.

Text 9

W: Hello, David. How's the local history project going? Are you making good progress?

M: Yes and no. We faced various kinds of problems. None of the group has much experience of cooperating on projects, but we spent some time discussing how to go about it and worked out what seemed a useful approach. But it seems that Jane and I are the only ones actually following the plan. This means that we've fallen behind our schedule.

W: I see. And that's tricky.

M: Yes, it is. We felt that the targets had been set so we'd all know what to deal with. But looking back, we probably should have really specified individual responsibilities from the beginning.

W: Well, this is quite a common problem, actually. If you go to the resource center, I think you'd find the advice service they provide. They're helpful at this point.

M: Thanks. We'll go there later.
