Come and Explore the Human Library Event

Are you tired of passive reading and eager for a lively exchange of ideas? A special Human Library Event is scheduled to take place in the school library from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. next Sunday.

This innovative activity features people as books and conversations as pages, pushing the boundaries of traditional reading. We've invited outstanding alumni to act as "human books". You are welcome to "check them out" and conduct in-depth two-way conversations. They will listen to your thoughts, answer your questions about your studies and personal growth, and share their life stories and insights – offering you an experience beyond printed books.

Come and explore the charm of the Human Library – where every page speaks!

The Student Union

第二节（满分25分）

Mrs. Lopez turned around and noticed Eli's serious condition. She rushed over and knelt beside him. "Eli, peanut allergy?" Eli couldn't speak – but nodded weakly, his face unnaturally red. Mrs. Lopez eased him into a sitting position and loosened his collar to ensure easy breathing. Then, she calmed the panicked crowd and dialed the emergency number. Squeezing Eli's trembling hand, she kept her voice calm: "Stay with me, Eli. Help is on the way." Lila stood rooted to the spot, guilt and confusion swirling in her tearful eyes. Other classmates stared anxiously, their faces pale with worry. Within minutes, the paramedics arrived and rushed Eli to the nearest hospital.

Two weeks later, the class held a “Safe Snack Party” to celebrate Eli’s return. The desks were covered with fruit cups, apple pies and cookies, each labeled with a clear ingredient card. On the blackboard, Mrs. Lopez had written in bright letters: “Ask first. Share safely. Care for everyone.” Lila approached Eli with a heart-shaped cookie and said softly, “My grandma helped me make this — we double-checked the ingredients.” Eli took the cookie with a grateful smile. He then turned to face the class and told them about his allergy, which was greeted by warm smiles and supportive nods. Being different no longer made him feel alone — it made him feel protected, understood and truly included.

W: How are you going to get home?

M: Oh, I can just take a bus or a taxi. There are usually plenty of taxis around that area.

W: Yes, but not on a Sunday night. (1) Why don't you ask Kevin to drive you home? He's coming along with us.

Text 2

W: Do you want to eat out tonight or would you rather eat at home?

M: We've eaten out a lot this week. (2) I'm perfectly happy to stay home for a change — as long as I don't have to cook.

Text 3

M: How are you and your roommate getting along?

W: Pretty well. She usually comes home late, but (3) she's always careful not to make any noise in case I'm sleeping. I like that. She's a real change from my old roommate who only ever cared about herself.

Text 4 (第 4 题为推断题)

W: These should control your backache. You should detect improvement within two days.

M: But my wife used a different medication for her back pain.

W: There are different factors that determine how a medication will work. I can't just give the same medication to everyone.

Text 5

W: I'm taking the job at Glendale Books. It'll be good experience to work for a publishing company.

M: (5) How are the benefits?

W: There's an excellent health plan. The company pays ninety percent of employees' health insurance. And it gives everyone free health club membership.

M: That's amazing! Congratulations!

Text 6

M: Have you thought about applying for a scholarship?

W: Do they have any? I mean, my dad is always complaining about how much money it costs him.

M: (6) In your department, there are actually three full scholarships available. But there are only two in my department. They cover school fees and provide $1,500 cash.

W: $1,500 cash?! Party!

M: Please, Miss. (7) The money is intended more as a textbook allowance, not party money. If you promise to behave, I'll show you how to apply.

W: Great, and thanks!

Text 7

M: Judith, I just wanted to thank you for all your help. (8) All of the flyers and posters you made for this year's Jazz Festival look amazing.

W: No problem! I was delighted that you asked me to get involved! I really hope that this year's event proves to be a big success.

M: Well, I just heard that (9) a reporter from Gold Soundz magazine is here to write a review of all the concert performers, so that's exciting!

W: It sure is! Do you have any time to meet up sometime this afternoon?

M: Sure. (10) Let's meet at the main stage at the end of Catriona Salford's set. Then we can watch the next musician together.

Text 8

W: Hi, I need to move to Watertown at the beginning of next month. (11) My company will be moving here, and they suggested we use your real estate agency. I'd like to rent a two-bedroom apartment.

M: Sure, here are some of the apartments that are available.

W: OK. Oh, and I see you have a three-bedroom apartment available?

M: Yes, that one's far from the city center, but it's spacious and quite nice.

W: Hmm... Well, (12) I don't really want to spend more than 650 dollars per month.

M: OK. Here's a two-bedroom apartment for 600 dollars – well within your price range.

W: I'd like to look at it. (13) Could we visit it sometime this week?

M: (13) I'll check my calendar.

Text 9

W: I'd like to welcome Barry Green, the successful concert violinist, to our studio today

M: Hello. It's good to be here.

W: Barry, why did you decide to be a violinist?

M: It was something I'd been desperate to do since I was about six years old. My parents weren't musicians, but (14) they let my brother and I do whatever we liked as hobbies, as long as it didn't get in the way of our education. My brother's a good footballer, but sport's never really been my thing. I watched a concert on TV, and after that I was hooked.

W: So what did you do when you left school?

M: I thought about studying maths or physics, but then (15) I heard about a youth band that was doing a world tour. They offered me a scholarship so I could afford to go, which was brilliant. When I got back, as I already knew what I wanted to do, it seemed pointless to delay going to music college, so that's where I went. (16) I'm very lucky to be able to do what I love, and to have achieved what I set out to do as a young child. Not many people get the chance to do that.

Text 10

W: Hi. My name's Jess. I work at an activity center for young people, as an activity leader. The center is in North Cornwall in the south-west of England. The center is open all year round, but (17) I only work here during the summer, and summer is the busiest time, so they need extra activity leaders then. Activity centers are a great idea for young people. Most of the people who come to the center live in towns and cities, so it's a chance to enjoy some fresh air. Our center is near the sea, so (18) we spend most time on water activities like surfing and sailing. We also do rock climbing and mountain biking on the mountain slopes. (19) I think that the most important thing about the activity centers is the social side. Young people today spend so much time on computers or watching TV that they don't talk to each other much. In most of our activities they have to work in teams, so (19) it's a good opportunity for them to learn about working and communicating with other people, and to make new friends, too. In the evenings, we get together to sing songs and play indoor games. On the last afternoon, we always have team games. Every group wants to be first, so they really try hard, and it's a lot of fun. (20) I've been an activity leader for three years now, but this will be my last time. I'm finishing university next year and getting a full-time job. It's sad to think that this is my last year here, but I've really enjoyed it.
